From the Pastor's Desk

SAD NEWS:

I have given this matter a lot of thought and prayer, but America's Promise Ministries will not be hosting a conference this year due to many other conflicts that have come up. I know that many of you were looking forward to this great yearly event, but I'm sure the Lord will bless us in other ways! If you do not have a local fellowship, you may want to get added to our weekly services CD or DVD list. See the enclosed flyer.

TRUTH FOR TODAY

Finally, it's spring time. For many of us, it has been a long hard winter season, but we certainly want to continue to remember the thousands of people who lost their homes, or were damaged by the horrific tornadoes and flooding. We have been told that the death rate exceeded 350 people, and when you consider the many family members, friends and loved ones who knew these people, the hurt grows deep and wide. It is good and right that Christians pray at this time of national turmoil and uncertainty. Something is wrong not only with the direction and policies of our nation, but also of those throughout the world as well. But my main concern and fears are for my nation, the United States of America, and then for England, Canada, Europe, Australia, and South Africa, because, for the most part, these are my people, and they are God's Covenant people, the true descendants of Israel. Outside of these people and nations there is often uncontrolled instability and untold danger and human madness.

One of the marks of Israel that we all appreciate is that they are a more clean and sanitary people. We have all heard the phrase, "It's an outward sign of an inward grace." We are called to be a holy people. In Leviticus 19:2, the Lord spoke to Moses, saying, "Speak unto all the congregation of the children of Israel, and say unto them, Ye shall be holy: for I the LORD your God am holy."

What this should mean to each and every one of us is, that we are to highly value the various marks of Israel, as they are blessings that distinguish us from the heathen, and we should praise God for these Covenantal blessings. Christians should not seek to be like the heathen. I do not care what the world thinks is best for us, their fruit and pathetic values reveal the depravity of their perverted religions and ignorance. Think about it, when you remove the blessed teaching and application of the Holy Bible the world becomes a very unsafe place to live and raise your children in, perversion grows, government tyranny increases, and eventually poverty and ignorance become common place.

We are failing as a people and as a nation because Christians are not defending nor standing upon the Word of God the way they should. If the eyes of those who claim to be Christians today could have their understanding open to as how the Christian faith has become so perverted and even paganized, they would be amazed. Few of them understand that most, if not all the various religious holidays they celebrate were originally pagan holidays that were "Christianized" by the Vatican.

When I was young, I clearly remember my parents dressing me up for church with a white suit on Easter, and participating with other children in our Baptist church in Easter egg hunts. As a child, I had no idea that I was participating in a pagan fertility worship of Ashtoreth (goddess of fertility), and that Easter bunnies have nothing to do with the blessed resurrection of our Lord Jesus Christ. Need I get into the pagan origin of Christmas and red Santa and the Babylonian origin of the xmas tree? All false forms of worship and pagan ceremonies weaken and corrupt us.

They aid and abet our enemies to come into our nation, gain power over us, and become judges, presidents, congressmen, bureaucrats and so forth. Has not God Almighty warned His people Israel over and over not to adopt the ways of the heathen? Thus, we have no one to blame, but ourselves for not believing and applying the Word of God.

Through and with the Word of God, we can become a strong, stable, vibrant nation with a strong sense of Biblical purpose and direction. We won't be a vagabond people of twisted values and misguided morals. We will have a Biblical sense of government, economics, justice, and business ethics. The corrupting influence of evolution and humanism will fade against the Light and Truth of the Holy Spirit that will move afresh upon the people.

One fact that I am very honored by, is the fact that most of the people who appreciate and support the Covenant message, also have a deep profound love for Jesus Christ, His Word, and this nation. It is because of our love for Christ and His Word that we fear for our nation and we are willing to stand against any and all corrupting elements that are being employed to destroy our God given land. The Bible warns us, "If the foundations be destroyed, what can the righteous do?" (Psalms 11:3).

Recently the American public were told that the great "Obama administration" found and killed the greatest terrorist the world has ever known, Osama Bin Laden. The Obama loving media would have us believe that what transpired, in the alleged killing of Osama, was akin to the David and Goliath Bible scenario. The way I see it is, the greater criminal gets glorified and is even erroneously referred to as a "hero." Furthermore, the real criminals who are destroying our nation are running free, and none dare call it conspiracy. People like Ben Bernanke, Barney Frank, Tim Geithner, George Soros, Nancy Pelosi, Harry Reid, Henry Kissinger (can you believe it, he is still an advisor to the White House), and many others too numerous to mention, including heads of the Bilderbergers, the IMF, the Federal Reserve, corporate media heads, and various policy makers. Yes, the real criminals who are destroying our nation are running the asylum.

People are wondering, "Did we really get Osama Bin Laden?" Well, if we did, what took so long?

The joke is on us if it takes more than 10 years and over a trillion dollars, plus great loss of life to find one man.

The government, media, and assorted "conspiracy theorists" have addressed the death of Osama Bin Laden. My opinion is that in the overall scheme of things, his death is being highly politicized as part and parcel of the unrest that is going on in the Middle-East. In other words, I suspect that events are being orchestrated to draw the Arab nations into a political trap. They are being played to conform to powerful corporate interests as part of "CAMPAIGN GLOBALISM."

This whole war against "terrorism" is all by design to bring the Middle-East into a more manageable region that will function through a sophisticated form of social conditioning much like Pavlov's dog conditioning. Pavlov developed various conditions whereby he was able to produce predictable or I should say, "conditioned" responses from a dog. The dog would react to various induced stimulus in which no incentive (food) or reason existed. As I said, there are now much more sophisticated conditioning methods for people that are being used upon them today that they are not aware of, but their methods do not successfully work upon all people. Sadly, their methods do work quite well with the majority of people who think of themselves as "Christians," but there are a remnant of Christians who are not susceptible to these brain-washing techniques, as long as they stay close to Jesus Christ, His Word, and His Commandments.

The Arabs will be conditioned to turn to those leaders whom they believe share their values, and who will tell the people what they want to hear, just like America's political leaders manipulate the unsuspecting masses today. Out of the chaos they create comes the control. But as the Word of God tells us, He will "put a hook in their jaw," and He is using the New World Order to do so.

There is a correlation between the hidden things of the Holy Spirit and the forming of Man's NWO. Jesus Christ is bringing the sons of God into His Holy Temple, but it doesn't stop with us, or with physical temples, because the bigger picture is that God is forming His people into a STONE KINGDOM full of Holy Spirit Light and Truth. Eventually, the kingdoms of this world will become the kingdoms of our Lord. Right now we have a man manipulated world order that must be regulated and controlled by the bondage of corruption. This must be understood because this is the 666 false religion that is the forbidden fruit of man's carnal enmity with God.

There is a House of God that will exodus out of captivity and be a part of the Kingdom building and be a ministry of restoration. In a sense, it is a Divine dichotomy He has purposed to produce a seemingly Divine contradiction that will transpire into a blessed HOPE. Romans 8: 20 tells us,

20 For the creature was made subject to vanity, not willingly, but by reason of him who hath subjected the same in hope,

In other words friends, in the end LOVE WINS, and that's what Romans 8:38-39 are all about:

38 For I am persuaded, that neither death, nor life, nor angels, nor principalities, nor powers, nor things present, nor things to come,

39 Nor height, nor depth, nor any other creature, shall be able to separate us from the love of God, which is in Christ Jesus our Lord.

In the final analysis, hell and damnation are not the final words of man's epitaph. Jesus Christ is, and He is the Way, the Truth, and the Life. He is the Word of Life that will breathe life into the dead bones of Israel and these resurrected bones will be given a fantastic ministry of restoration. In the final analysis, JESUS WINS. ## JOHN WAYNE

In this newsletter and in the next several to come, I will be inserting various portions of an interview that John Wayne did with Playboy magazine many years ago. Now certainly I do not endorse Playboy, and I do not and never have subscribed to this perverted magazine. However, someone sent me this special interview they did with John Wayne, and I was absolutely amazed at his responses to the various questions the interviewer threw out at him. I always liked John Wayne, but now, I have to admit that I watch his movies with a greater sense of pride and respect now.

PLAYBOY: How do you feel about the state of the motion-picture business today?

WAYNE: I'm glad I won't be around much longer to see what they do with it. The men who control the big studios today are stock manipulators and bankers. They know nothing about our business. They're in it for the buck. The only thing they can do is say, "Jeez, that picture with what's-her-name running around the park naked made money, so let's make another one. If that's what they want, let's give it to them." Some of these guys remind me of high-class whores...

PLAYBOY: Won't the present rating system prevent that from happening?

WAYNE: No. Every time they rate a picture, they let a little more go. Ratings are ridiculous to begin with. There was no need for rated pictures when the major studios were in control. Movies were once made for the whole family. Now, with the kind of junk the studios are cranking out—and the jacked-up prices they're charging for the privilege of seeing it—the average family is staying home and watching television. I'm quite sure that within two or three years, Americans will be completely fed up with these perverted films.

PLAYBOY: What kind of films do you consider perverted?

WAYNE: Oh, Easy Rider, Midnight Cowboy—that kind of thing. Wouldn't you say that the wonderful love of those two men in Midnight Cowboy, a story about two fags, qualifies? But don't get me wrong. As far as a man and a woman are concerned, I'm awfully happy there's a thing called sex...

PLAYBOY: How graphically do you think it should be depicted on the screen?

WAYNE: When you get hairy, sweaty bodies in the foreground, it becomes distasteful, unless you use a pretty heavy gauze. I can remember seeing pictures that Ernst Lubitsch made in the Thirties that were beautifully risqué—and you'd certainly send your children to see them. They were done with intimation. They got over everything these other pictures do without showing the hair and the sweat. When you think of the wonderful picture fare we've had through the years and realize we've come to this "dung", it's disgusting. If they want to continue making those pictures, fine. But my career will have ended. I've already reached a pretty good height right now in a business that I feel is going to fade out from its own vulgarity.

PLAYBOY: Don't gory films like The Wild Bunch also contribute to that vulgarity?

WAYNE: Certainly. To me, The Wild Bunch was distasteful. It would have been a good picture without the gore. Pictures go too far when they use that kind of realism, when they have shots of blood spurting out and teeth flying, and when they throw liver out to make it look like people's insides. The Wild Bunch was one of the first to go that far in realism, and the curious went to see it. That may make the bankers and the stock promoters think this is a necessary ingredient for successful motion pictures. They seem to forget the one basic principle of our business—illusion. We're in the business of magic. I don't think it hurts a child to see anything that has the illusion of violence in it. All our fairy tales have some kind of violence—the good knight riding to kill the dragon, etc. Why do we have to show the knight spreading the serpent's guts all over the candy mountain? (End of John Wayne interview for now, more in next newsletter.)

OSAMA BIN LADEN DEAD?

Call me a skeptic, but why the rush to baptize the dead so soon after they “killed” Osama?

(The following was written by reporter Paul Joseph Watson, May 5, 2011)

...Pieczenik cannot be dismissed as a “conspiracy theorist”. He served as the Deputy Assistant Secretary of State under three different administrations, Nixon, Ford and Carter, while also working under Reagan and Bush senior, and still works as a consultant for the Department of Defense. A former US Navy Captain, Pieczenik achieved two prestigious Harry C. Solomon Awards at the Harvard Medical School as he simultaneously completed a PhD at MIT.

Recruited by Lawrence Eagleburger as Deputy Assistant Secretary of State for Management, Pieczenik went on to develop, “the basic tenets for psychological warfare, counter terrorism, strategy and tactics for transcultural negotiations for the US State Department, military and intelligence communities and other agencies of the US Government,” while also developing foundational strategies for hostage rescue that were later employed around the world.

Pieczenik also served as a senior policy planner under Secretaries Henry Kissinger, Cyrus Vance, George Schultz and James Baker and worked on George W. Bush's election campaign against Al Gore. His record underscores the fact that he is one of the most deeply connected men in intelligence circles over the past three decades plus.

Paul Watson then goes on to report: Pieczenik said that Osama Bin Laden died in 2001, “Not because special forces had killed him, but because as a physician I had known that the CIA physicians had treated him and it was on the intelligence roster that he had marfan syndrome,” adding that the US government knew Bin Laden was dead before they invaded Afghanistan.

Marfan syndrome is a degenerative genetic disease for which there is no permanent cure. The illness severely shortens the life span of the sufferer.

“He died of Marfan syndrome, Bush junior knew about it, the intelligence community knew about it,” said Pieczenik, noting how CIA physicians had visited Bin Laden in July 2001 at the American Hospital in Dubai.

“He was already very sick from Marfan syndrome and he was already dying, so nobody had to kill him,” added Pieczenik, stating that Bin Laden died shortly after 9/11 in his Tora Bora cave complex. (End of article)

CLOSING COMMENTS ON THE ARTICLE ABOVE: Ok, that's all I have room for in this newsletter to say about Obama, wait, I mean Osama. Those two seem so much alike to me. The media of course is trying to get us to say Usama, instead of Osama because it is too close to Obama's name, have you noticed that? Anyway, I still think that Osama was job security for the CIA war, the Pentagon, and the government law-enforcement industry. I'm still not so sure that Osama and Elvis are not on some tropical island sipping pina coladas.

Preparing for the Unknown By David Barton

• Posted on March 1, 2011

Most American prognosticators, whether of an economic or a social bent, are predicting a rocky road ahead. And who's surprised at that? After all, there have been too many wild oats sown for too many years not to have to pay the piper at some point. But impending tough times are nothing new; they have repeatedly been part of the human experience since the days of Adam and Eve. King Solomon widely acknowledged to be the wisest man in the world, correctly observed: That which has been is what will be; that which is done is what will be done; and there is nothing new under the sun. Ecclesiastes 1:9

In short, the past tends to repeat itself. Jesus similarly noted: When you hear of wars and rumors of wars, do not be alarmed. Nation will rise against nation, and kingdom against kingdom. Mark 13:7-8

Instability is the normal condition of man. America had its revolution in the midst of what was called “The Age of Revolution” – a time when Russia, Greece, Haiti, Italy, France, Peru, Poland, Ireland, China, Philippines, Spain, Portugal, Korea, Mexico, and many other nations also had revolutions. Because history (and therefore the future) is predictable, there are three Biblical axioms of transcendent applicability for today’s citizens to help ensure their survival through whatever may lay ahead.

1. Plan Ahead – and Prepare for the Unexpected
Nearly everyone has 20/20 hindsight, but foresight is more important. An old axiom notes, “There’s no education in the second kick of a mule.” The real trick is to see the first kick before it comes, and avoid it. This means looking down the road, seeing what might be over the horizon, and taking preventative action. As the Bible affirms on two separate occasions: A prudent man foresees evil and hides himself, but the simple pass on and are punished. Proverbs 22:3, 27:12

This is certainly not an admonition to crawl into a cave, go into hiding, and live in fear. Instead, it is a warning to take affirmative safeguards. The Bible provides an excellent model for emulation in this regard: Go to the ant! Consider her ways and be wise. Having no captain, overseer, or ruler, she stores up her provision. Proverbs 6:6-8

The ant makes a habit of setting aside part of its current provision against a time when there might be a shortage. Summertime and harvest won’t last forever; wintertime will come, and with it a need for provisions to survive that time of difficulty. Like the ant, we should not consume all we gather – we need to set something aside; we need to have a savings plan and to have disposable cash and foodstuffs at hand for unexpected times of emergency. After all, God Himself has ordained that there be cycles of change: While the earth remains, seedtime and harvest, cold and heat, summer and winter, day and night, shall not cease. Genesis 8:22

One of the biggest problems with government, whether federal, state, or local, is that it ignores the law of seasons. It creates its budget and bases its spending on springtime numbers, ignoring the fact that wintertime will arrive.

We should make the ant our model – learn to not consume all we gather, and store up some of our provisions for the future.

2. Live Conservatively

No matter our level of individual income, Americans have the world’s most prosperous lifestyles. According to information collected by the U. S. Census Bureau, even the average American who lives in poverty and receives economic assistance from the government “has a car, air conditioning, a refrigerator, a stove, a clothes washer and dryer, and a microwave. He has two color televisions, cable or satellite TV reception, a VCR or DVD player, and a stereo.” In fact, individuals living in poverty in America have “more living space than the average individual living in Paris, London, Vienna, Athens, and other cities throughout Europe.”

Yet despite our prosperity, we are rarely content with what we have. We have fallen prey to the truth that: The eye is not content with seeing. Ecclesiastes 1:8

American advertisers make a living on this fact. They show us something new in an ad or a commercial and we are convinced that we have to own it, whether it is the most recent game system, car, cell phone, or home entertainment system. We drive ourselves into debt in order to own the newest, latest, greatest. We need to learn the joy of living under the standard set by the Apostle Paul: I have learned the secret of being content in any and every situation, whether well fed or hungry, whether living in plenty or in want. Philippians 4:11-12

In short, we must master our appetites and learn to be content with fewer possessions. As Benjamin Franklin wisely recommended:

“When you incline to have new clothes, look first well over the old ones and see if you cannot shift with them another year, either by scouring, mending, or even patching if necessary. Remember, a patch on your coat and money in your pocket is better and more creditable than a writ on your back and no money to take it off.”

And learning to live conservatively not only allows us to follow the pattern of the ant (and thus be able to store away some of our provisions) but it also enables us to take care of the next generation. After all, the Bible observes: “A good man leaves an inheritance for his children’s children.” Proverbs 13:22

We should be looking far enough down the road to be able to set aside something now and then leave something significant for our grandchildren. Spending our children’s inheritance is not a virtue, either in private life or in government. By living conservatively, we can survive difficult times and still have something to pass on to posterity.

3. Preserve Personal Character At All Costs
Of all the dozens of personal character traits, the Founding Fathers concluded that integrity was the most important. As Declaration signer Benjamin Rush explained:

“I have observed that integrity in the conduct of both the living and the dead takes a stronger hold of the human heart than any other virtue. . . . By integrity I mean . . . fidelity to promises.”

What did the Founders see as the source of this virtue? According to Joseph Story:

“To secure integrity, there must be a lofty sense of duty and a deep responsibility to future times as well as to God.”

The Founders believed that integrity – that is, keeping one’s word – was directly linked to a personal sense of accountability to God. In fact, King David asks a probing question: “Lord, who will stay in Your house? Who shall live in Your habitation?” The simple answer: “He who keeps his oath, even when it hurts.” Psalms 15:1, 4

In times of increased pressure and trouble, there are frequently more opportunities to break one’s word – to shift on a tough business deal, to escape family pressure through marital infidelity, to renege on one’s financial commitments, etc. At such times, integrity is needed in even greater measures. And keeping one’s word will produce exactly what is needed most during times of trouble and difficulty: it will produce hope. As the Apostle Paul affirms, “Trouble produces endurance; endurance produces character; and character produces hope” Romans 5:3-5.

— — — ◇ ◇ ◇ — — —
The timelessness of these three principles have equipped generations of Americans not only to survive but even to thrive in the most difficult and unpredictable of times and circumstances. (End)

NEWS (Iraq and World Currency) May 16, 2011
WASHINGTON — Treasury Secretary Timothy Geithner said Monday that he will immediately halt investments in two big government pension plans so the government can continue to borrow money.

Geithner informed Congress of his decision in a letter stating that the government had officially reached its $14.3 trillion borrowing limit. He repeated a warning that if lawmakers do not increase the borrowing limit by August 2, the government is at risk of an unprecedented default on its debt.

The debt limit is the amount of money the government can borrow to help finance its operations. The nation has reached its debt limit because the federal government has grown accustomed to borrowing massive amounts of money. The latest estimate is that it borrows 40 cents for every dollar it spends.

Republicans have said they will not vote to raise the borrowing limit until Congress and the White House agree on a plan to reduce the deficit through spending cuts. House Speaker John Boehner last week those cuts should be larger than any increase in the debt ceiling.

The deficit is the difference between what the government spends and what it takes in through taxes and other revenue. The Congressional Budget Office projects that this year's deficit will total $1.4 trillion. That's would nearly match 2009's record imbalance and mark the third straight year in which the federal deficit has exceeded $1 trillion.

Vice President Joe Biden is holding negotiations with lawmakers over the types of deficit-cutting measures that need to be approved to win congressional approval of a higher debt limit.

Even though the government has reached its official borrowing limit, Geithner said unexpected revenue and bookkeeping maneuvers will allow the Treasury to continue auctioning debt for another 11 weeks.(end of news article)

I'm Sorry, But I Don't Believe It

Guest Columnist, Dave Daubenmire

I take no pleasure in saying this, but I don't believe it.

It is a sad state of affairs that we have reached the point where you can't believe anything you hear. In fact, you can't even believe what you see.

Call me whatever name you want to, ridiculing me won't shut me up. The truth is you just can't believe it any more.

It, you say. What is it?

Everything...anything...you just can't believe it anymore. Modern-day America is just one big pack of lies, told by a cadre of liars.

I'm sorry...whatever it is...I don't believe it.

How about you? Do you believe them? Do you believe the malarkey they are trying to feed us?

I'm not sure which makes me angrier...the lying...or them thinking I am dumb enough to believe the lies.

That's why I have adopted a new position; A variation of Ronald Reagan's "Trust but verify" philosophy.

I don't trust until I verify. That's my new motto.

They tell us that:

- Bin Laden is dead.
- He was unarmed.
- They buried him in the ocean.
- We can't handle the pictures.
- That terrorism is crippled.

I'm sorry, but I don't believe it.

They tell us that:

- Obama was born in America.
- His birth certificate is authentic.
- He loves America.
- He is eligible to be President.
- He loves Jesus more than Mohammed.

I'm sorry, but I don't believe it.

They want us to believe that:

- Republicans are for smaller government.
- Republicans want to stop abortion.
  - Republicans are for the free market.
  - Republicans believe in individual liberty.
  - Republicans are better than Democrats.

I'm sorry, but I don't believe it.

They tell us:

- The economy is improving.
- The dollar is strong.
- Don't buy silver and gold.
- The stock market is safe.
- The bankers are honest.

I'm sorry, but I don't believe it.

They tell us that Secular Jews:

- Don't control the media.
- Don't control Hollywood.
- Don't control the financial systems of the world.
- Aren't behind the ACLU and SPLC.
- Are a discriminated, powerless minority and if I speak out I am anti-Semitic.

I'm sorry, but I don't believe it.

They want us to believe:

- Our schools are doing a great job.
- We need to spend more on education.
- Higher education is not controlled by communists.
- The Department of Education improves education.
- Our students haven't been purposefully dumbed-down.

I'm sorry, but I don't believe it.

They have tried to convince us that:

- Individual gun ownership makes us less safe.
- The courts can be trusted.
- Judges are impartial.
- Our elections are honest and the voting machines are tamper proof.
- Every vote counts and all votes are counted.

I'm sorry, but I don't believe it.

They have tried hard to sell us the idea that:

- Fox News is fair and balanced.
- Bill O'Reilly is looking out for you.
- Hannity is not a Republican cheerleader.
- Limbaugh doesn't carry Republican water.
- Fox News is not controlled by the Saudis.

I'm sorry, but I don't believe it.

They have tried to convince us that:

- Homosexuality is normal.
- Women don't regret their abortions.
- Planned Parenthood is good for women.
- Our tax dollars don't fund abortions.
- God is ambivalent about child-killing.

I'm sorry, but I don't believe it.

They want us to believe that:

- Our elected officials go to Washington to serve us.
- They follow the Constitution.
- Power doesn't corrupt.
- There is a right to healthcare but not a right to life.
- There are honest people in Washington.

I'm sorry, but I don't believe it.

Pastors tell us that:

- The rapture is going to rescue us.
- God is love and does not believe in judging.

- Government schools are good for Christian kids.
- We should stay out of politics.
- If we send them $100, God will send us $1000.

I'm sorry, but I don't believe it.

Never in American history have so many lies been told by so many, so often, about so much. I don't trust until I verify. Turn on your truth-detector. Wake up. (ED NOTE: Stand in CHRIST)-By Coach Dave Daubenmire, May 5, 2011, NewsWithViews.com

05/16/2011 (From Dr. Stephen E. Jones' Blog) IMF Chief Kahn (arrested for sexual assault) represents Priesthood or Cohen

The Wikipedia entry for Kahn says this in his biography: Dominique Gaston André Strauss-Kahn is often referred to in the popular press as DSK,<sup>[2][3]</sup> is a French economist, lawyer, and politician, and a member of the Socialist Party of France (PS). He became the Managing Director of the International Monetary Fund (IMF) on 28 September 2007, with the backing of his country's president, Nicolas Sarkozy

Dominique Strauss-Kahn was born on 25 April 1949 in the wealthy Paris suburb of Neuilly-sur-Seine, Hauts-de-Seine. He is the son of Gilbert Strauss-Kahn, a legal and tax advisor and member of the Grand Orient de France, and Russian/Tunisian journalist Jacqueline Fellus. His family is of mixed Sephardic and Ashkenazic Jewish origin.<sup>[4]</sup>http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Dominique\_St\_ross-Kahn

So he is Jewish, a Socialist, and if not a Freemason himself, he is at least the son of a Freemason (Grand Orient de France). The name Kahn is a version of Cohen, which is Hebrew for "priest." As the head of the IMF, he is the Chief Moneychanger in the temple, and the priests are being cast out of the temple.

CLOSING THOUGHTS: I'm Ok, you're Ok, if you're in Christ Jesus, now that may sound corny to some of you, but I like it. I have just finished reading a fantastic book called THERE'S A HAILSTORM COMING, written by a good friend, Richard Hale. The book is not in print yet, but we hope to have this book printed soon. It covers a wide variety of Biblical truths we hold dear. I just want to compliment Mr. Hale for this blessed book. - Great book! Well, that's it for this month, may the Lord Jesus Christ bless and protect you, Pastor Barley
